Goldstein the chanel to St. Louis, and six feet & Rosenwater, Commercial avenue, between Eighth and Ninth streets, and must confess our surprise at seeing the immense stock to be found in this house. This firm have long enjoyed the reputation of being among the leading dry good merchants of the city, and one who will take the pains to examine their stock, will need no other assurance of the truth of this re-

In the the line of silks, Irish poplins, velvets and velveteens, etc., they have a most choice and select assortment. Of Irish poplins alone, they have upwards of two hundred and fifty paterns, of silks their stock is enormous; of velvet and velvetines it cannot be surpassed. Ribbons, gloves, ladies collars, and all the minor articles that go toward making up the dress of a lady, are to be found here in abundance. Of their stock of ready made clothing there is no end, and their prices are so reasonable that they have built up a large and profitable trade in this line. In the way of hats and caps they are doing a big business.

The firm of Goldstein & Rosenwater are now prepared to fill orders for goods, either at wholesale or retail. The wholesale business with them is a new feature, and they are confident of their ability to compete with other markets in the same trade. As the season when people begin to prepare for winter is now at hand, we advise our readers to call upon Messrs. Goldstein & Rosenwater before purchasing elsewhere.
